OPERATED UPON ON RECURRENCE OF OLD AILMENT

Aged Senator From Mass.
Undergoes Severe Test of Vitality After Operation

(By The Associated Press)
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 28.—Henry Cabot Lodge, senior senator from Massachusetts, lay in a hospital here today, utilizing all the strength of his 74 years to recover from the effects of an operation performed yesterday afternoon after a critical recurrence of a former ailment. Early morning reports from the hospital today said that the senator was as well as could be expected following so severe a test of his vitality.

The attending physicians said that the operation, which was for removal of an obstruction in the bladder, would have to be followed by another not unusual necessity in a case of this disorder, they explained.

The senator, who has been under a physician's care since his return to his Nahant home a month ago, suddenly became seriously ill yesterday morning. He was hurried to the hospital here and after a consultation his physicians decided to operate. Mr. Lodge, in good spirits and in remarkable condition for his age, rallied quickly and regained consciousness last night. His continued recuperation depends entirely on his own strength, the physicians said.

Statement at the hospital said:

"It is a serious situation. I believe that Senator Lodge will be all right, but nothing can be told for another twenty-four hours."

The second operation that will be necessary is the removal of the bladder obstruction responsible for the senator's condition may take place any time that his condition indicates it advisable, according to the doctor. A test will be made within the next two or three days to determine the probable time for the operation, he said.

TO MAKE PROBE INTO WRECK OF EXCURSION SHIP

Vessel and Surroundings in Which It Was Wrecked
to Be Examined

(By The Associated Press)
NORFOLK, Va., July 28.—Examination of the excursion steamer Gratitude, and the surroundings in which she was wrecked near Craney Island while returning to Norfolk with nearly 300 employees of the Texas Company and their friends on Saturday night, was being made today by Colonel F. A. Pope and other representatives of the United States army engineers' office and by agents of the steamers' owner.

Inquiry into the cause of the accident with reference to placing responsibility will probably follow within the next day or two. Meanwhile, B. F. McIlhenny, owner of the Gratitude, is arranging to have a survey made looking to securing bids of raising and removing the wreck. That there was no loss of life nor more serious injuries during the brief panic which followed the steamer's striking a submerged wreck was declared today by William M. Downing, superintendent of the Texas Company's Money Point plant, to have been almost miraculous, and due to the quickness with which the excursionists recovered their poise.

In the jarring of the craft as she struck the sunken barge and in the using of the Gratitude to an angle at which none could hold their footing, there were but two persons so severely hurt as to require more than first aid treatment. These were Mrs. Z. S. Payne, 145 Seaboard avenue, who was badly bruised about the legs as she was hurled against the steamer's woodwork, and T. L. Hughes, of New York, an employee of the Texas Company there, who is visiting here went on the excursion. He suffered a dislocated shoulder.

TODAY LADIES' DAY AND TOMORROW 'MURPHY DAY' SHOAF'S TIME TO PITCH

The Greensboro Patriots arrived in Danville early this afternoon for a three-game series with Danville, the first game to be played this afternoon at Sewell-Jackson park at 4:15 o'clock. Ladies' Day will again be observed by Manager Murphy this afternoon. Harris will be the Danville pitcher's choice as moundman, while it will either be Sherrill or Jim Harris for the visitors.

Tomorrow will be known as "Murphy Day," at which time the community has been asked to turn out in full strength as a mark of appreciation to the owner and manager of the Danville Club, who has been recently feeling the effect of curtailed attendance.

Once of the more ardent fans asserted this morning that Tuesday be made "Dollar Day," that is that all of the fans attending the game pay a dollar's entrance fee which would materially aid the club owner in bridging the financial shortcomings which has come into evidence of recent weeks. Naturally those who did not feel like paying the dollar could enter at the regular rate. The belief is that the community will appreciate Murphy's efforts to give Danville good baseball by a heavy attendance on the day named in his honor.

Several Danville people were at the lake yesterday and assisted in diving operations. Undertaken to recover the body of the victim. Among these were Isaac Schuster and Robbie and Ben Kushner who were instrumental in finding the body. A physician who happened to be on hand said that the body had been immersed too long to allow the hope of resuscitation by artificial methods. The body was removed to Durham later in the evening.

Waits 28 Years For Royalties

AMANDA MOORE, AT 16, WHEN SHE WROTE "STAR OF THE SEA" AND TODAY, WHEN SHE IS BEGINNING TO GET SOME OF THE PROFITS.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
Amanda Kennedy Moore waited just 28 years for financial success to follow achievement.

At the age of 16 she wrote a song which used to be played on every piano and cabinet organ in the country. It came to life before the phonograph and radio did. You've probably played it yourself and heard all the other youngsters on the block play it. Her name is "Star of the Sea."

That old favorite has had the largest sale of any song ever written. Over nine million copies of it have passed into circulation and it has a steady output of about 200,000 new copies every year.

But not until the piece was 28 years old did Mrs. Moore add more than a dollar and a half—her original selling price—to her own pocket.

Even the copies she got for her own pupils—she was a teacher all this time—she bought with just the teacher's discount allowed.

During this time it passed through the hands of three publishers, and made a fair-sized fortune for all of them, and had an enormous sale in England.

Then, after 28 years of making money for others, the copyright expired and the golden goose came back to Mrs. Moore—just in the nick of time, too, for it was only three years later that her husband died, and but for the royalties she might have been in what we call straitened circumstances.

Then a New York publisher paid a good price to get it, partly because he had a certain sentimental interest in the piece, it having been his father's favorite song as they sat about the family parlor on Sunday afternoons, and partly because he always has an eye out for business.

Since the copyright came back to Mrs. Moore's possession, her royalties have provided her and her sister with a comfortable Boston suburban home, a substantial bank account and a 100-acre farm in Maine.

Mrs. Moore still teaches music, though, because she loves to, but she doesn't have to worry any more about the rainy day.

Enters West Point Early

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 28. — Fifteen months ago Kaj E. Rasmussen arrived in America from Copenhagen, Denmark. He couldn't speak a word of English, and he was completely ignorant of the ways of the new land.

Today he is a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy, and if all goes well, he will be an officer in the army in four years.

When he arrived from Denmark, he knew but he wanted. It was to enter the army. He did just that. Then, for 15 months, he studied hard and gained enough knowledge to pass the rigid entrance examination to the academy.

"It couldn't have happened in any other country," says Rasmussen.

An inkling of what was to come was shown fellow buck privates soon after his enlistment. Within a short time he became a corporal.

A considerable part of his army experience was passed with the 19th Regiment in Hawaii. He studied diligently while there.

Kaj isn't the only proud member of his family. Just the other day a certain mother and a certain father received this cablegram in their Copenhagen home:

"Future address is West Point, U. S. A.—Kaj."

Talking Honey

By G. L. FURGERSON

(No. 18)

(Credit for the following honey recipes should be given to the Colorado Honey Producers' Association of Denver, which has done much to develop and stabilize honey production in the Rocky Mountain region. Each recipe has been fully proved by the best cooks among the wives of Association members. The series is well worth saving.)

Honey and Nut Sandwiches.
Mix honey with pecan meats or almonds minced, and make into sandwiches with small baking powder biscuits.

Doughnuts.
1 egg, 1 cup honey, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup sweet milk, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 teaspoon soda, pinch salt.

Cream the honey and shortening together and add the egg, well beaten, and the other ingredients. Mix well, and add flour enough to roll out and cut easily. Roll out on baking board and cut with doughnut cutter. Fry in hot lard. The honey in this recipe makes the doughnuts a delicious brown and also keeps them moist for a much longer time than they usually are.

Soft Honey Cake.

½ cup butter, 1 cup honey, 1 egg, ½ cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Rub butter and honey together; add the egg well beaten, then the sour milk and the flour sifted with the soda and spices. Bake in a shallow pan.

Yellow Honey Cake.

½ cup butter, 2 egg yolks, 2-3 cup honey, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1-3 teaspoon cloves, 1½ cups flour.

Sift together the flour and the spices. Mix the sugar and egg yolks, add the honey, and then the flour gradually. Roll out thin, moisten the surface with egg white, and mark into small squares. Bake in moderate oven.

Honey Wafers.

¼ cup butter, ¾ cup honey, ¾ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon powdered cardamom or anise seed.

Mix together the butter and honey and all the flour, sifted with the spices. Spread out very thin with a broad, long-bladed knife or spatula on a buttered, inverted dripping pan, or on flat tins made for the purpose. Mark off in 3-inch squares and bake in a slow oven until delicately browned. While warm, roll into tubular shape and hold until they cool and, if necessary, until they harden into shape. Honey wafers are not quite so tender as those made with sugar.

Honey Ice Cream.

1 quart thin cream, ¾ cup honey. Mix ingredients and freeze.

Boiled Honey Custard.

2 cups milk, 2 egg yolks, 1-3 cup honey, ½ teaspoon salt.

Mix the honey, eggs and salt. Scald the milk and pour it over the eggs. Cook in double boiler until the mixture thickens. This custard is suitable for use in place of cream on gelatin desserts, or to be poured over sliced oranges or stewed fruit.

HERE'S WHAT WILL HAPPEN IF NO ONE IS ELECTED

COL—HERE'S...

By CHARLES P. STEWART
WASHINGTON, July 26.—Suppose, at the polls, neither Calvin Coolidge, John W. Davis nor Robert M. LaFollette gets enough votes to give him a majority in the electoral college.

One of the three will get a plurality, but none may get a "majority" over all.

Indeed, this is what the Progressives really are fighting for. Of course they HOPE LaFollette will get a majority. Some even say they THINK he will do so. But what they honestly do believe is that he will prevent anybody from getting a majority, that maybe he will get a plurality.

In such an event, as frequently has been mentioned, it will be up to the House to choose a president from among the three highest candidates.

But the house, too, may easily be deadlocked for if there is a tie, then the balance of power there. They can prevent the election of the Republican candidate or the Democratic but they can't elect the Progressive, and there is no probability that either the Republicans or the Democrats will help them.

If, by the next inauguration day, the House has made no presidential selection, the winning vice-presidential candidate will become president.

Now, if no presidential candidate has a majority in the electoral college, it is most improbable that any vice-presidential candidate will have one and THAT choice will be made by the Senate. But the Senate does not vote on the three highest candidates. It votes on only two.

Ordinarily, then, the Senate can't deadlock for if there is a tie, then the president officer, that is to say, the vice president, casts the deciding vote.

In the Senate, as in the House, the balance of power is in the Progressives. If the two leading vice-presidential candidates happened to be the Progressive and a Democrat, it isn't conceivable that the Democrats would prefer a Progressive to a Republican and so elect the former.

Or, since there are a good many conservative Democrats among the publicans, these two Republicans might combine and elect the Republican.

If the two leaders should be a Progressive and a Democrat, it isn't certain that the conservative Republicans would join the conservative Democrats for Charles W. Bryan has something of a reputation as a progressive himself.

This might slightly increase the Progressive candidate's chances on the theory that the Republicans would prefer a progressive Progressive to a progressive Democrat. But the probabilities are they wouldn't—that they'd prefer almost anything to a Progressive.

Finally, in case the two leaders should be a Republican and a Democrat, the assumption is that the Progressives would prefer the more or less progressive Charles W. Bryan to the avowedly conservative Charles G. Dawes, and at the balance of power is the Progressives', that would mean Bryan's election.

On the whole, should there be a deadlock in the electoral college and the House of Representatives, politicians are generally of the opinion that Bryan would have a little edge on his rival candidate.

There is, in this instance, a bare possibility of a tie in the Senate, for the reason that there's no vice president to cast the deciding vote. Calvin Coolidge having been elevated to the presidency by Warren G. Harding's death.

Authorities differ as to whom the president would be if the Senate should deadlock. Some say he would be Albert B. Cummins, president pro tempore of the Senate. Some say he would be Secretary of State Hughes. But the Senate probably won't deadlock.

GERMAN REICHSTAG CLOSES FOR INDEFINITE PERIOD

(By The Associated Press.)
BERLIN, July 26.—The Reichstag adjourned for an indefinite period today after rejecting by a vote of 172 to 62 a resolution of lack of confidence in the government proposed by the extreme nationalists.

The German nationalists abstained from voting. Their spokesman, after declaring that a two-thirds majority was necessary to pass the bills in connection with the Dawes report announced that his party would vote against the bill unless the minimum conditions of the nationalists were fulfilled before the Dawes report was accepted. These minimum conditions he said, were the economic and military evacuation of the Ruhr, the cessation of sanctions and the carrying out of the Rhineland agreement with the evacuation of the Cologne zone next January.

"BILLY" PUGH, TRAIN VICTIM BURIED SUNDAY

The funeral of William Pugh, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Swann Pugh who was struck and instantly killed on Saturday afternoon by train No. 36 at Washington street crossing, was conducted at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon by Rev. Roy Jarrett, interment being made at Mountain View.

The pall bearers were, D. H. Pruitt, I. W. Ramsey, G. E. Carter and J. B. Wilson.

Young Pugh was a member of Mrs. Roy Jarrett's Sunday school class, and the members from six to fourteen years of age, acted as flower bearers.

The cause of the tragedy was the same as that which so frequently figures in railway accidents. The little boy was standing on the tracks waiting for a southbound freight train to pass them, and not thinking, crossed the tracks as soon as the last car had gone by only to step in the path of the oncoming flier. The tragedy was enacted in the view of a dozen or more people. The last boy was seen as a terrific blow by the pilot of the engine and was tossed some distance to one side. He probably never knew what hit him as his skull was crushed and many of his bones were broken. The little brother leaped to safety and missed by inches the death which overtook his younger brother.

Inquest unnecessary. Schoolfield policemen quickly hastened to the scene at which a number of people had already gathered. Magistrate R. S. Pitts went to the scene and after hearing the statements of a number of people who saw the accident decided that an inquest was not necessary the cause of the little boy's death being patent.

The two brothers had been sent to do some shopping by their mother. They had made their purchases and were returning together when they saw a freight train laboring up the grade and they stood by a telephone post at the Washington street crossing while it passed. The rattle of the train passing close to them downed the scream of the passenger train locomotive in the background.

Among the eyewitnesses to the accident were Mr. O. Clide Pugh, uncle and aunt of the little boy whose home is well within view of the tragedy. Mrs. Pugh who realized the boys were waiting to cross and who was yet impatient to act faint as the impact came.

Police Officer J. W. Pugh, also uncle of the boy made an investigation of the accident as soon as he reached the spot. He stated that the boys had been sent to Jones' drug store to procure a cake of chocolate, and used by him for cooking, and, after returning home when the tragedy took place. He quotes Sam Pugh, the survivor, as saying that he does not remember how he escaped being struck. All he remembers is the roar of the train and the instant leap forward which cleared the child from the matter of inches, according to eyewitnesses.

RAILWAY LABOR BOARD TO MEET UNION DEFY

(By The Associated Press.) CHICAGO, July 28.—The United States Railroad Labor Board postponed until September 5th further hearings on the controversy between engine operatives and the western carriers.

The postponement came upon the initiative of the board in order to allow the carriers additional time to prepare a statement and historical record of the rules involved in the controversy. There was no representatives of the labor brotherhoods involved before the board today.

The United States Railroad Labor Board prepared today to answer the challenge to its authority by representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen.

Members of the board at the opening of the hearing today in the controversy between the two brotherhoods and the western carriers were increased and changes in working rules were argued with legal opinions and court rulings with which they will attempt to establish their right to summon parties to the dispute before the board and demand that they submit their case to the jurisdiction of the governmental tribunal.

The two brotherhoods on Friday formally notified the board that they would not submit testimony in the case.

It was the contention of the labor organizations that the board had no authority to assume jurisdiction of the dispute without the consent of both parties to the controversy.

Nation Awaits Verdict

The fates of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold rest with this man. He is Chief Justice John R. Caverly, of the Cook County Criminal Courts, who is to decide whether the slayers of young Robert Franks are to die on the gallows be confined in the penitentiary for life or serve not less than 14 years for their crimes to which they have pleaded guilty and thrown themselves upon Caverly's mercy.

Good Morning Judge!

A goodly number of law breakers who went wrong during the past week-end answered Judge Caverly's morning call this morning. An investigation into the why's and wherefores of the cases revealed the fact that "Old corn liquor was the cause of it all."

AIMING TO CLEAN UP A SECTION

James Norris, colored attempted to help out the prohibition enforcement officers by drinking up all of the whiskey that he could get his hands on. But Jim overestimated his capacity for hiding it away, and later came to grief. Shipping a most looking pistol into the bosom of his shirt, and carrying a gnarled walking stick in his hand he went out to find his woman, and when he called at a neighbor's house and enquired for her and was informed that she was not there Jim got despondent and began to use a lot of cuss words that were not equipped with shock absorbers, threatening to clean out the whole gone business. James was taxed with fines totalling $31 and the costs.

George Harrison colored, was apprehended by Officer Kessler, while driving through the city streets a reckless pace, and Officer Belton hauled in Willie Carter, another colored youth, charged with the same defense. He was turned over to the county officials who had a similar charge against him. The other cases had been unsuccessful attempts to scale Corn Mountain, and were fined and taxed with fees of the guides who brought them in.

S. Carolina Markets To Open Aug. 5

FAIRMONT, N. C., July 28.—Princess Nicotine is preparing to mount her throne in South Carolina and the border North Carolina markets. Twenty-eight auction markets are scheduled to open Tuesday, August 5th. At three of the markets in the belt, Lake City, S. C., Fairmont, N. C., and Mullins, S. C., these being the largest markets in the South, will be run. The markets opening, in their alphabetical order, will be: Andrews, S. C., Chadbourne, N. C., Clarkston, N. C., Conway, S. C., Darlington, S. C., Dillon, S. C., Fair Bluff, N. C., Fairmont, N. C., Florence, S. C., Hartsville, S. C., Hemingway, S. C., Johnsonville, S. C., Kingstree, S. C., Lake City, S. C., Lenoir, S. C., Loris, S. C., Lake View, S. C., Lumberton, N. C., Manning, S. C., Marion, S. C., Nichols, S. C., Olan, S. C., Polk, S. C., Sumter, S. C., Tabor, S. C., Timmons, S. C., and Whiteville, N. C.

At many of the above markets the farmers have been bringing their tobacco to the warehouses for several weeks and many private sales have been made. The grades that have been brought to market are the prime grades. While they have shown a high color, yet they lack body, the rain having washed the "sum" off Lake City, S. C., always receives tobacco several weeks ahead of any other South Carolina market, and this year has proved no exception to the rule.

HILL CITY FIRE LOSS WILL BE NEAR $300,000

(By The Associated Press.) LYNCHBURG, Va., July 28.—The loss by the fire here Saturday afternoon which destroyed the industrial exposition building and spread to three Main street stores, approximately $300,000. If the value of the burned buildings is considered without regard to walls which may be found to be intact, which would greatly reduced the cost of restoration. This might cut the total loss of $300,000 with insurance of about $190,000. Hooker's warehouse, valued at $28,000, has most of its walls intact but a rebuilding will mean a very large roof and a large floor space which may make the cost of this work in excess of the value placed on the warehouse by R. G. Robertson, its owner.

The stores of Woody-Evans Company, grocers, Perrow-Davis Hardware Company and the Army and Navy Sales Company are completely gutted, a condition due to the fact that the rear of the three stores opened into the warehouse. The Hill Luggy and Wagon Company which abutted the fire on two sides, suffered practically no damage, due to a perfect fire wall, while the store of Anderson Stone and Company, grocers, and feed dealers under the warehouse office in Thirtieth street, was saved by a fire wall which ran from its store on both sides and the rear to the foot of the warehouse.

The only damage in the flooding of the store basement, where three feet of water seeped in from the warehouse. While owners of the buildings have made no definite plans as yet it is practically certain that all of the buildings will be restored.

Insurance adjusters began work this morning.

FISHING BOAT IS FIRED UPON OFF VA., COAST

(By The Associated Press.) NORFOLK, Va., July 28.—The fishing boat Pattie May, owned by the Ballard Fish and Oyster Company of Norfolk, was fired on in lower Chesapeake bay Sunday, according to her captain, Abe Quinn, of Hampton Roads on his arrival here. Rum pirates or highjackers made the attack, is the opinion here.

Captain Quinn was inclined to believe that the vessel which sent a guard patrol boat on duty looking for rum runners, but Captain A. J. Henderson, commanding the coast guard in this district, today asserted that no ships of his service were in the bay at that time.

In view of the statements by coast guard authorities denying responsibility for the alleged attack, the possibility that rum pirates are operating in the lower bay was developed. Quinn says that he was on his way from Pickett's Hole on the eastern shore to Norfolk with a load of fish, when he heard the report of a gun and a bullet struck his deckhouse. He was to at once, and a vessel, which he thought was a coast guard patrol boat, came alongside.

A man, who represented himself to be a coast guard officer, according to the report made by Quinn to his wife, demanded to come aboard. The two craft were lashed together and the visitor went over to the Pattie May. He demanded to see the fishing boat's papers, and then looked the ship over from stern to stern. Quinn says that he was on his way from Pickett's Hole on the eastern shore to Norfolk with a load of fish, when he heard the report of a gun and a bullet struck his deckhouse. He was to at once, and a vessel, which he thought was a coast guard patrol boat, came alongside.

Quinn said the man from the attacking boat told him he had whistled for the Pattie May to stop, and that he had fired when he failed to obey orders. The fishing boat skipper says he heard no signals.

DEMOCRATS CAN'T DESERT PARTY IN NOV. AND BE DEMOCRATS AT PRIMARIES

Byrd Declares That Voter Cannot Go to La Follette or Coolidge and Remain a Democrat With Right to Vote in Virginia Primaries.

WINCHESTER, Va., July 28.—A Democrat cannot vote for La Follette or Coolidge, and remain a Democrat with the right to vote in Virginia Democratic primaries, Harry Flood Byrd, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, declared in a statement issued here today.

Circulars advertising several La Follette meetings in Fairfax county and reciting that these gatherings would be held under the auspices of the "first Democratic La Follette club of Virginia" have been placed in the chairman's hands, he said.

The chairman of the meetings announced that they had worked out a labeling which would preserve the party standing of both Democrats and Republican voting for La Follette and still give them the right to vote in then respective party primaries, said Chairman Byrd.

This is so obviously a counsel of disloyalty that it should not go unrecorded. Democracy is not a label which can be slipped off and on according to the whim of the voter.

The law of self-preservation demands that the Democratic party cannot permit its nomination to be influenced by those who vote against its nominees. In recognition of this necessity, both the statute of Virginia, enacted in 1924 and the party plan adopted at the late Norfolk convention provide that no person can vote in a party primary who is not a member of such party unless it be the case in the preceding general election, he voted for the nominees of his own party.

Therefore, both reason and law will deny the right of a person not a member of the Democratic party to participate in any Democratic primary unless and until he or she regains that right by voting in some future general election for the Democratic nominees.

A Democrat is one who approves the principles of his party and submits himself to its discipline. In return, he or she becomes a part of the Democratic party and is given the privilege of the Democratic organization backed by a long history of achievements and honorable traditions.

"A Democrat is given the right to vote in Democratic primaries which in Virginia means the right to participate in the selection of State officials, whose nomination means election."

"Every man and woman is politically free. He or she may have a choice. But a man or woman has a right to retain the prestige of being designated as a Democrat and participate in Democratic primaries who votes against the nominees of his or her national convention."

Political alignments are proven not by an label, but by the vote. Chairman Byrd said he was making this announcement in behalf of the State Central Committee in view of the "movement" which "I am informed" will be State-wide to prevail upon Democratic voters to disregard party lines without impairing party standing and the right to participate in future Democratic primaries."

RECKLESS DRIVING RESPONSIBLE

(By The Associated Press.)

RICHMOND, July 28.—The "reckless and careless" driving of the automobile that struck the machine driven by Thomas Cavan was held by a coroner's jury today to be responsible for Cavan's death early on the morning of July 18th, when his car was struck by one in which the police charge Robert L. Alley and John R. Cross were riding. Alley and Cross were present at the inquest, at which no action was taken in regard to the case of William Walker, who was killed by Cavan's automobile, was the principal witness at the inquest.

Alley and Cross are being held in the city jail pending a hearing of the case in Hustings Court on August 6. The police allege the smashup was the culmination of a series of automobile thefts here.

STERN NOTE IS SENT BY U. S. TO PERSIANS

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Acting Secretary Grew of the State Department announced today the dispatch of "vigorous representations" to Minister Korntfeld at Teheran, Persia, as a result of the assault upon Mrs. Katharine Imbrie, widow of Vice-Consul Robert Imbrie, who was killed recently by a mob in Teheran.

The communication sent to Minister Korntfeld protested against the situation in Persia which culminated in the unprovoked attack on Mrs. Imbrie. It was supplementary to a State Department note dealing more generally with the conditions existing in Persia and covering the vice consul's death.

In announcing the forwarding of the two communications, Mr. Grew said he had received advice from the minister announcing the delivery of the communications Saturday to the Persian authorities.

A flat statement was made that continuance of American diplomatic and consular representation in Persia "will depend upon the action which the Persian government may take in this case to vindicate" the principles of international law.

The communication delivered to the Persian foreign minister Saturday indicated that the United States expected the Teheran government to meet the expense of sending an American war vessel to bring home the body of Vice-Consul Imbrie and to furnish military guards for the American legation and consulate for such time as might be necessary.

In conclusion the American communication said that the Washington government "cannot over emphasize the seriousness of the view which is taken of the present situation."

Vast Reservoir of Electrical Energy Planned

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Principals for the creation of a vast reservoir of electrical energy through interconnection of power centers in the northeastern section of the United States are laid down in the report of the engineering subcommittee of the northeastern super-power committee, of which Secretary Hoover is the chairman.

The subcommittee's recommendations, published today, contemplate construction and development of steam and hydro-electric resources in the New England and Middle Atlantic area on a basis of probable requirements in 1930 when it is estimated that part of the country will need 30,000,000 kilowatt hours, as compared with the 1922 production of 21,200,000 kilowatt hours.

Although maximum waterpower development in the section can produce only 25 per cent of the necessary energy, says the report, establishment of the system proposed would reduce coal consumption by 50,000,000 tons a year.

The sub-committee considered the resources and needs of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia, and devoted some attention also to those in Ohio, Virginia, and West Virginia. Only eight per cent of the existing powerplants in the area are inter-connected at present, it found.

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

By HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, July 28.—When the Prince of Wales, disguised as Baron Renfrew, comes to the States next month to watch the polo tournament, there will be a mad rush from Washington to obtain invitations to luncheons, dinners, etc. in his honor.

Not that Washingtonians don't like the prince. They do. But most of them also like food. And from a special source during the prince's visit to Washington a few years ago it was found that lunching with a prince has serious handicaps.

During the prince's sojourn in Washington, a select group of representatives of American society, from official and ultra-fashionable circles, were asked to a private luncheon at the town house of Perry Belmont, where Wales had taken up his residence.

The royal scene proved a most charming flow. He knew offhand the personal interests and connections of each of his guests, and conversed in a friendly and at length with each. Magnificent luncheon and appetizing petites gorges. When the party finally was ushered into the dining room, the thing uppermost in the minds of most of those present was food food substantial and plentiful!

Alas! however, for such fond hopes. Even in democratic America, a developed, royalty must be served with a certain amount of ceremony.

And if he doesn't happen to have much appetite, the prince must have much appetite, either.

Perhaps the prince had breakfasted late that morning. Perhaps he had a light meal. Anyway, the prince got his first and did not wait for a second to satisfy such appetite as he had.

Before the guests at the foot of the table had much more than licked their chops in anticipation of the delicacies to come, His Royal Highness had finished.

And, having finished, he apparently sensed no reason why he should remain at table until other should be able to finish. Without excuse or apology, therefore, he left a chair, pushed back his chair and with a draw.

What to do, in such a crisis? The guests looked at each other hesitatingly, inquisitively.

Someone who thought he knew the royal regulations, pushed back his plate and his chair and followed.

Doubtless that was the thing to do, so it was done. But ah! how instantly!

With longing, lingering looks at the scarcely touched food they had just begun to enjoy, the prince's party followed him. He was in the wake of Albert Edward.

As an occasion of distinction in the lives of the commoners present, it was an event to be remembered. But as a luncheon, either royal or otherwise, it was private, and emphatically branded as a "frost."

"Diplomatic immunity" is one of the most prized prerogatives of foreign officialdom in Washington. In its eyes, it is a value in the eyes of the ordinary citizens of the capital, as that it enables those to whom it is extended to bring in free articles from customs duties and prohibitions on the importation of pure and potable alcoholic beverages.

But to the diplomat and their families that is merely incidental. One diplomatic dowager who parked her car by fire plug the other day defied the protesting policeman who accosted her. She was not diplomatic in her language, but she was immune from arrest. She did not move the car.

Had she been speeding at 30 miles an hour, she could have given the officer the "haw-haw."

PARIS, July 28.—The formal ceremonies of bringing to a close the Olympic games of 1924 will be held tomorrow afternoon in the Colombes stadium which was the scene of a chief part of America's sweeping triumphs in the protracted international athletic battles.

While probably a majority of the athletes of the 45 competing nations have already left for home, a representative group including members from nearly all the nations participating in the games will be present to attend to the closing ceremonies.

The closing ceremonies will be held at the stadium which will be the scene of a chief part of America's sweeping triumphs in the protracted international athletic battles.

Pittsylvania Court Has a Busy Week

Pittsylvania circuit court at Charlottesville yesterday closed a strenuous week by disposing of an unusually heavy criminal docket, with Judge John M. Hart, of Roanoke, presiding in the absence of Judge J. Turner Clement. It is doubtful that at any time of court a larger number of cases has been tried or a greater percentage of convictions has resulted. Commonwealth's Attorney J. J. Hundley has had an unusually trying week's work, but he has emerged with a most creditable record.

Yesterday the court was engaged practically all day trying the case of Alex Clark, colored, charged with selling a pint of liquor, in violation of the prohibition statute—a second offense case. After hearing the evidence and the exposition of the law the jury returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at twelve months in jail and a fine of $300.

George Dixon and Earl Dixon, negroes, charged with housebreaking, were convicted and given terms of two years each in the penitentiary. They broke, entered and robbed Jones' store, near Dry Fork. The two housebreakers were also tried and convicted on an indictment charging them with breaking into and robbing Starnes' store near Hineville. Then they were tried and convicted of a felony assault on an accomplice in one of their robberies, the assault being committed near Vance.

George Dixon, the elder, father of the two convicted housebreakers, was convicted of receiving stolen goods and fined $100 and the court costs. Another charge against him, that of selling liquor, was set for trial at the November term of court.

Purell Nester, a white man, indicted for a felonious assault on Owen Wells, whom he shot on College avenue, Schoolfield was tried convicted and given two years in the penitentiary.

Norman Pryor, white, was tried on an indictment charging felonious assault, having struck a man named White with a Wilson-standard A. A verdict of guilty was returned and he was given two years in the penitentiary.

Will Dixon, a negro, indicted for manslaughter, having killed another negro in a drunken brawl was convicted and given two years.

During the term the prosecution lost only two whiskey cases, one of which being that of Sam Jones, of Almagro, and the other that of T. R. Neal, a white man both of whom were acquitted.

An unusual case tried was that of Willard Bailey and James Smith, white men charged with larceny, one of which being that of Sam Jones, of Almagro, and the other that of T. R. Neal, a white man both of whom were acquitted.

MODERN 20TH CENTURY COVERED WAGON

THE NEW TRANSCONTINENTAL BUS AS IT STARTED FROM TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK CITY

ENROUTE TRANS-CONTINENT. July 28.—Another covered wagon is blazing a new trail across the country.

Instead of being a prairie schooner of the Roarin' Forties, it is a motor bus of the busy Fifties of Broadway, where America's automobile row begins its stretch from coast to coast.

In the wake of this machine may come a new method of transcontinental travel in which you will be able to go to the nearest crossroads, hop into a bus and continue onward in comfort until you reach San Francisco or New York.

For Dave Fassett, veteran autoist, is ben ton showing the nation that it can be done. He is driving the bus that is making the first trip. With him are two passengers. But on subsequent trips he expects to have a car full.

The car is tricked up with the latest conveniences. There is lounge room, and a smoking compartment. "Just like in a Pullman," say the passengers.

And the trip may be made cheaply. For the whole bus, according to L. R. Anderson, of the company that built it, sells for only $5,100.

No attempt will be made for speed on this first trip—just comfort and a demonstration of the practicability of the idea.

The full route will cover New York, Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland, Toledo, South Bend, Chicago, Minneapolis, then over the northern route through North Dakota, Montana, on to Portland and south to San Francisco.

Then if the passengers want more of a ride they can continue on the same way back.

The permanent establishment of such transportation is conjectured. Automobile experts are divided among themselves on the possibilities of such development.

Some believe that motor transportation should be made supplementary to railroad transportation, linking up those towns which are off the main lines. Others believe that the motor bus or truck may supercede the rail lines.

Whatever the result, this trip marks a new era in transportation—only as an experiment.

AUTO SMUGGLERS ACTIVE ALONG GERMAN FRONTIERS

BERLIN, July 26.—Automobile smugglers have been operating in Germany. This fact came to light recently when government agents swooped down upon the Avus speedway, between Berlin and Potsdam, set up a guard at either end and confiscated a lot of cars of American and other foreign makes, the owners of which could not produce papers to show that they had paid the import duty.

Government officials announce that a great many foreign cars were brought into Germany this spring through the occupied territory along the western frontiers where there are no customs officials. Most of them came from France, and paid no import tax.

This effective defense against bedbugs is Dethol—a modern, liquid preparation formulated by Richmond chemists after years of careful experiment. Sprayed along baseboards, in floor cracks and breaks in wallpaper, the deadly fumes of Dethol penetrate to the unsuspected hiding places of these pests—destroying both bedbugs and their eggs.

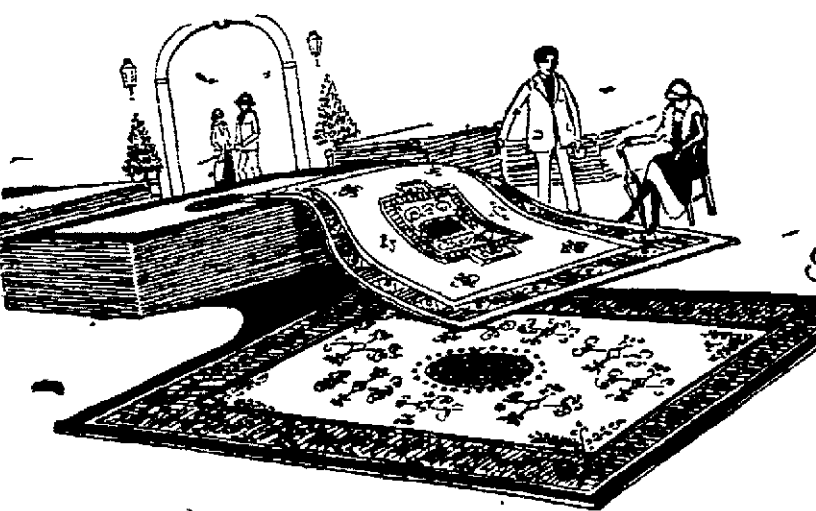

Sprayed thoroughly into the tufts of mattresses and about all parts of the bed, Dethol kills without staining even the most delicate fabrics or coverings. Periodic spraying will keep away these pests. Full directions on can.

Dethol is certain death to all insect life—flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, ants, etc. Many housewives find it a valuable aid, also, in cleaning. Sprayed lightly on windows, tile, marble, tubs, etc., Dethol cuts dirt like magic—you simply wipe the sprayed articles clean with a damp rag. Dethol also disinfects.

Drug, grocery, hardware and department stores sell Dethol in the handy combination package—complete with sprayer and large can of liquid—for 85c.

You really cannot afford to be without Dethol. If your dealer hasn't Dethol, we will send you the combination package, post free, on receipt of one dollar. Dethol Mfg. Co., Inc., Richmond, Va.

The Truth About Rug Prices

Rugs are lower in price now than they have been in years. This is brought about by a price war by several of the larger manufacturers which has rebounded to the benefit of the consumer. During this price war rugs were offered to the retailers at prices below actual cost of production.

COUNTRESS WORKING AT LEATHER TABLE

CHICAGO, July 26.—The Countess Elsa Bernadette, niece of King Gustav V., reigning ruler of Sweden, daughter of Prince Oscar Bernadette, is passing life as it is lived in the poor districts of Chicago.

Last week the countess was the honor guest of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick. This week she is working from 7 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. for $18 a week, sitting opposite a Pole, at a power machine, cutting tanned hides into leather parts. She has always wanted to see how the other half lived. So when she came to Chicago for a visit early in July, she registered at the Virginia Hotel as Miss Elsa Bernadette, and then she started out to find a job. She walked the streets for days answering advertisements, only to be turned aside because the job had been filled. At many places she was told there was nothing for her because she was inexperienced. Finally she found work in a leather loft, where tanned hides are sent to be cut by a power machine. She guides the hides through the machine as a Polish worker handles the machine. For various she stamps a number on each side.

Countess Elsa since she obtained her job has not called on Mrs. McCormick nor Charles F. Peterson, another friend, and she will not hunt them up until July 30. When she does leave her leather cutting table, she will go to the city of Chicago.

Disappointment of the farmer is attributed by an authority to the fact that he has grown tired of running behind. That happened once before had they got up a riding plow.

Swanson Wins Over J. R. Whitehead, Republican Candidate For Congress, By Over 4,000 Majority In 1900.

Walter P. Tudor believes he will be nominated by a greater majority than the Honorable Claude A. Swanson received over his Republican opponent, Whitehead in 1900, notwithstanding the fact that, Swanson had only one opponent to beat while he (Tudor) has two opponents. Walter P. Tudor is now and always has been a One Hundred Per Cent. Democrat; a successful progressive business man.

Below will be found returns copied from Danville Register, November 7, 1900.

Returns from Pittsylvania county are as usual slow in coming in. At 12:30 a. m. only 24 out of forty-six precincts have been heard from and the returns from these are not complete, in some cases majorities only being given. These are the returns so far received:

Bailands—Bryan, 94; McKinley, 128; Swanson, 129; Whitehead, 118. Swanson's majority, 11; McKinley's majority, 34.

Ringgold gives Bryan 154 majority and Swanson, 213.

Stokestand—Swanson, 121; Whitehead, 89; Swanson's majority, 32; Bryan's majority, 43.

These precincts have given Whitehead the majorities stated. Ellis, 25; Hurts, 66; Weal, 11; Giles, 25; Total, 113.

The twenty-two precincts in Pittsylvania county with one or two exceptions are Democratic, and in 1898 gave Swanson about 1,300 majority over Bryan. It is believed that they have done quite as well this year. On a conservative estimate they will increase Swanson's plurality in the county to 1,400 and probably 2,000.

Districts Estimated.

The following returns and estimates based on returns from the other counties of the district give approximately the majorities in these counties:

Greason county (official), Swanson's majority, about 600.

Henry county, Swanson's majority about 600.

TEN YEARS AGO

Today marks the decennial of the world war—the passage of ten fleeting years since the day when Austria-Hungary declared war on Serbia, following the Sarajevo assassination, and the beginning of what future historians will describe as a new era in international politics. The anniversary of an event which changed the fortunes of nations and which brought death to millions has crept up silently. Many a mind will hark back to what already seems a very distant day when things, people and standard were so different with a new realization of the old adage that "time and tide wait for no man," but they will also question the equally old saying that time is a healer of sores and wounds. Ten years has not been long enough to appease the animosities which fomented the world war and cost the world so much in human suffering and the exhaustion of nations to a point of impotence. In 1918 there was an impression worldwide in scope that a lasting peace would be made, that the Teutonic powers would be called to make a severe accounting, that nations which for five years were at each others' throats would slip back to the pursuits of peace and that the day of war-borne privation would shortly cease. This has been a chimerical fancy. As we study the complexion of world affairs today there is little to encourage us. The peace for which men fought and fell has not been attained, the international unit which statesmen and economists predicted has failed to materialize but the apple of discord has ripened and today the world so recently shattered cannot fail to recognize that the conception of a lasting peace has miscarried, and the smoldering fires of resentment because of that failure are mounting. On the very day that the torch was applied to Europe, newspaper headlines proclaim an inter-allied deadlock, a quarrel between friends due solely to the inability of the triumphant nations to exact a penalty from the defeated powers which economically at least are in no worse condition than those who won the fruits of victory, at the greatest cost. The peace so earnestly and anticipated is a peace in theory only. The map of Europe reveals the fruit of conquest but in practical terms there is no peace—certainly none worthy of the tremendous effort and sacrifice made to attain it.

BRAINS

Time was when it was maintained that the reason women were mentally inferior to men was because women's brains weighed less than men's. In this way we once accounted for a good many of woman's alleged shortcomings. Whether we did not understand and could not explain in any other way was accounted for by a shortage of weight in her brains.

Today there are many people who believe that at least at school age girls are cleverer than boys. They may be very complex reasons for this which the scientist could reveal if he cared to; but a much shorter way out of the difficulty has been found by a woman phenologist in England who rejects the complicated proof in favor of something much simpler.

She maintains that up to a certain age girls are brighter than boys because the girl's head grows faster than the boy's. More particularly it is the breadth of the head that counts. We are told that girls are apt to be round headed and boys long headed. This so-called expert consoles the boys, however, with the information that later on in life boys' heads begin to widen.

Further investigation may find more convincing proof for this contention than it has now. Or we may have to do what we did in the case of the belief in the weight of the brain—discard it altogether. Until such time comes, however, there is one thing which all the owners of heads will do well to remember.

For the proper development of the intellect it is more important to make good use of one's brains, than to rely for success on their weight or on the size or shape of the head.

FIRST—BUT NOT ONLY

"America First" is a cry that satisfies all the claims of our selfishness. Individual and national, without doing violence to the rights of others or seeking to alter our relations with the rest of mankind. It is simple recognition of the biological law of self defense which is implanted so thoroughly in everything that lives.

But in "America First" there lies a danger which perhaps all who shout the slogan have not sensed. Unless we are careful and keep our individual and national minds open we may fall into that other attitude which says "America only." That would be a mistake worse than the other of making our own interests secondary to those of the common world. The first loss would be at its worst only physical. The second would be spiritual and the effects upon ourselves would be as much worse as the spiritual is exalted above the purely animal.

"America first" is an order for prudence and selective action. At its best it means that we must not neglect ourselves to advance others or to pull them out of ditches where they perhaps have no business to be. To neglect ourselves is just as bad—some say worse—than to neglect the cry of distress and plea for rescue from others. At its worst "America First" may come to mean a shutting up of ourselves within ourselves, a closing of the door between ourselves and the rest of the human family. And that in its more remote analysis would be a reversion to a lower type of mankind. And as between loss of some of our material possessions and the sacrifice of our spiritual possessions who will hesitate to make the choice?

"America First" by all means, for that declares for judicious caution in acts of generosity in whatever form extended. But we should be watchful on our guard that it doesn't degenerate into "America only." To deny the claims of kinship strikes at the foundation of our faith in the more sublime teachings of the world's grandest religious system. That ethical guardianship might forbid even "America First" since we cannot in justice claim to be better than our brethren. But if that is allowed nothing can excuse the negligence which might lure us into the selfish position of "America only." And this is a step easily taken.

APPLY WHEN

THE LAST EPISODE

She had been crying. As a matter of fact, she was weeping now.

Bravely she was endeavoring to hide her emotion. "Indeed, emotion is not the word, for that word connotes a certain agitation that was lacking in her manner."

Her speechlessness was written upon her face—that despair of youth so infinitely more tragic than the despair of age. And she was pathetically young. In years, perhaps, she had reached maturity. Her nose was the type of face that mirrors the innocence of childhood. Neither time nor experience can ever age such folk.

But even these can suffer. Perhaps, indeed, they suffer more than the calloused of soul. A cynical violator of the laws of man, wanted to go over and pat her hand, and wipe away her tears.

I smiled as I pictured myself doing this. Her young eyes would doubtless resent such an action, for I have not reached the age when I may venture such benevolence. I am young—not as young as the youth who accompanied her, but still old enough when women so often glance my way. Partly, too, my smile was sardonic. I was not the person to offer chivalrous sympathy to weeping maidens, with or without escort.

At this very moment, the police of New York were searching for me. As I have recounted in a previous chapter, one Sewede Thomassen, a brutal murderer, had been killed in my apartment by the White Eagle. That great forerunner of crime, I would admit that I had defeated him on numerous occasions.

The newspapers were filled with accounts of the finding of Thomassen's body, and with tales of the extraordinary efforts police were making to find Robert Stickney, the tenant of the apartment. Indeed, the newspapers, dispersed the White Eagle. They said that he had renounced a service to society in idling it of Thomassen. Nevertheless, the police naturally desired to interview Mr. Stickney. And if Mr. Stickney were captured by the police, he would transpire, possibly, that he was a gentleman of fortune, who had become a professional despoiler of the too numerous profiteurs which the war had created.

Now I, John Ainsley, had no wish to disclose my identity, my means of livelihood. In fact, that means of livelihood, I hoped, had been abandoned. I had made my stake. I intended to sail for Australia. In a couple of years I would return. I would go to that native town of mine where the Ainsleys were known and respected and would take up again the life that I had my fortunes.

Five days had elapsed since the discovery of Thomassen's body. And during those five days I had secluded myself in the rooms which I had taken in a modest hotel.

But I was always a restless person. Tomorrow, at five in the morning, the Celeste sailed from her dock for Sydney. My baggage was already in my stateroom. I would have been a simple matter for me, having paid my hotel bill, to step into a taxi, drive downtown and across Brooklyn Bridge to the steamer.

But I would not see New York again for at least two years. It would take me that long to establish myself in Australia that if, in the years to come, some one should ask if John Ainsley had made a fortune in the island continent, it would be possible to point a background of trading or speculation.

I felt homesickness before I had left my country's soil. I wanted to drink in the air the vital air of Manhattan, to see the hurrying people. And so, despite the fact that policemen were armed with a description of Robert Stickney, John Ainsley dined at the Trevor.

It was a time when I should have taken risks and adventure. And certainly it would be madness of me to add to the risk already run by intruding upon the young couple who sat at a table in the alcove diagonally across the Trevor dining room.

Who was I bearing my burdens, to think that I could lift the weight from another's shoulders? And yet she looked like a girl whom I had known a dozen years ago, a girl with whom I had gone to school.

She was a pretty girl. Her hair was golden, her complexion pink and white, her mouth sweet and gentle, and her nose was straight and small enough to add a touch of roguishness to her countenance—although, indeed, her present mood held no gaiety.

Her companion was about twenty-four. He was good-looking, and on an occasion when he was less harassed than now, his face would have been ingenuously charming. This was no lovers' quarrel, this was no grief of the ordinary sort which they were sharing. Only some desperate turn in the tide of their affairs could reduce these naturally buoyant young people to their present condition of despair.

Well, under all the circumstances, it was no business of mine. I paid my check and started from the room. It was necessary for me to pass their table. And heard the girl say: "Frank, you won't kill yourself?"

Now, nine hundred and ninety-nine times out of a thousand, the person to whom such a question is addressed is the slightest intention toward self-destruction. But there is always the thousandth case.

This boy had pride; it was legible in his lips, in the gleam in his eyes, the thinness of his nostrils. Such a person might readily be proudly unable to see any way out of a difficulty but the doorway to death. And so, acting as always in my life, upon impulse, I dropped into the seat beside him.

These alcoves in the Trevor were furnished with broad benches whose cushions would accommodate two persons on each side of the table. The girl and the boy sat on the bench, the recess afforded, against the wall, opposite each other. There was plenty of room for me beside the youth, but not much welcome.

I raised my hand to stop his angry expostulation.

"I want to talk to you," I said curtly.

The anger died out of his face to be replaced by a greenish hardly credible expression.

"If you try to arrest me here, I'll kill you first," he said quietly.

I smiled at him. "Do I look like a detective?" I asked.

"If you're not, do you intrude upon us?" he demanded.

"I am a friend," I told him.

"I never saw you before in my life," he asserted.

The girl's face lost the expression of horror that the youth's word had brought to it. She reached across the table and touched his hand.

"Let him explain, Frank," she pleaded. "It can do no harm."

I bowed to her. I turned to the boy.

"She's worth dying for," I told him. "Equally, worth living for."

"Your opinions are undesired and impertinent," he said.

"But my intentions are of the kindest," I retorted. "Young man, don't be a fool. Men in fear of arrest, and threatening suicide, are silly to think of conventions. Look at me. Do I seem the type of an unconventional thing without a reason?"

"Let me hear your reason," he replied.

"I have been watching you two people," I said. "Facing by your table I heard you, and I looked at the girl—ask him not to kill himself. Here is danger. Am I such a coward that I must refuse to obey the ordinary dictates of humanity and the young man sneered. 'Strangers give their lives for strangers, but not their money.'"

"How much?" I asked.

"Then thousand dollars," he replied. "I suppose you have that much in your pocket?"

"I have," I told him calmly. As a matter of fact, I had at least three times that amount in cash upon my person. John Ainsley had in letters of credit and in securities that would be as readily negotiable in Australia as they were in New York, something like three hundred thousand dollars more.

"And I suppose that inasmuch as you would risk your life to save a drowning man, you will gladly hand me over the ten thousand dollars?"

His lack of belief was understandable.

"Wait a bit," I suggested. "Before I leap into the river to save the drowning man I assure myself that he is really in danger, not merely hysterical from fright."

The boy's eyes were contemptuous but the girl anticipated his refusal.

"Explain to him, Frank," she pleaded. "It can do no harm. He is not a detective."

I bowed to her. "Thank you," I said.

"I am a thief," he said harshly facing me squarely.

I nodded. "And discovery—" he began.

"Is certain by tomorrow morning," he declared.

He glanced around the restaurant. The hour was late. Most of the patrons had left. I produced a pocket-book. From it I withdrew twenty-five hundred-dollar bills.

He eyed them with a whistle of amazement came through his clenched teeth.

"Do you suppose I can accept such a gift?" he whispered, as though the sight of the money had hurt his vocal cords.

"Is death easier?" I inquired.

"You're about twenty-five," I guessed. "Let us assume that I did not always have a pocketbook filled with money. Let us suppose that if a stranger had been my friend, had done for me what I am offering you, that—well there might have been a girl as there is a girl with you."

He took the money. Growl and heard him take it and live, or refuse and die. Do I have to be you to accept what I do not need?"

Crack-Shot Wears Glasses

OTTAWA, Canada, July 26.—A slim, frail youth of 19, son of a school principal here, a youth who wears heavy spectacles at all times, has walked off with the prize shooting honors of the year—the King's Prize at Bixley Camp, England.

To many such an honor might seem trivial, but to residents of Ottawa it means glory.
Private Desmond Burke, member of the Governor General's Foot Guards, is the fortunate lad. The accompanying prize of $1,500 will enable the youth to go to college and get a higher education which otherwise he would have been unable to attain.

Young Burke's score was 66, and that included 19 bulls at 1000 yards, a real feat of marksmanship.
The King's Prize dates back to 1860. Queen Victoria started the competition to encourage marksmanship. She opened the first tourney and the story goes she made a bull's eye at 400 yards. Since then the shooting for the prize has been an annual event, and the winner considered the best shot in all the United Kingdom.
That's why Ottawa is excited because her strapping youth copped the prize.

GREENSBORO SLEEPS FOUR GAME SERIES WITH CAPS

GREENSBORO, July 26.—Greensboro nosed out victorious over Raleigh in both games of this afternoon's doubleheader, in the first game by the score of 7 to 6 and in the sunset affair by a count of 3 to 2. In the first game Raleigh after being held scoreless for six innings went on a batting spree and sent five men across the pan and tied the score in the eighth with another tally. Greensboro came back in her half of the eighth and brought in the winning run.

In the seven inning game, Greensboro won by making a run in each of the first three innings. Dale Harris hit his fifteenth home run of the season in the second with none on. Raleigh managed to push two runs across in the sixth but lacked the hitting to tie the score. O'Hara and Moore made the catches. The box scores of the two games follow:

Senators Win; Yanks Lose to White Sox; Giants Lose

THREE CORNERED TIE OF TIGERS, SENATORS AND YANKEES FOR TOP LOOMS

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 28.—A three-cornered tie for the leadership of the American League within the next few days looms up as a likely possibility today as New York and Washington, already in a deadlock for second place, attempt to reduce Detroit's half game advantage. The Senators made good their threat to win the tie game with the Yankees by defeating Cleveland while both the pace-makers lost.

With the game and first place seemingly on ice, Walter Hout became careless or weary in the ninth inning of the New York-Chicago tilt and aided by timely errors on the part of Ruth and Meusel, put the White Sox in a position to win subsequently from Gaston by 7 to 6. Thurston, the Windy City twirler, although removed when his club was three runs behind, got credit for a victory and thereby ran his string of consecutive victories to ten.

Victimized by their old failing of wasting hits, the Tigers lost a 4 to 2 decision to Philadelphia. The Jung-

SOME OF THE BATHING SUITS ENTERED IN ATLANTIC CITY BEAUTY PAGEANT

By MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, July 28.—We have a new crop of beauties and a new crop of bathing suits. The photograph above will show you some of the contestants and the costumes that are already in the race.

I'm informed that the regalia on the left, worn by Rita Caldwell, is to be the standard costume.

It is an adaptation of a sport dress made of blue and white satin with a smart monogram and a leather belt and short knickers that come near enough to the knee to please the most exacting beach coach.

Blanch Nevins is carrying the popular black and white craze into her beach costume. Her black satin costume is worn over white knickers and she adds a smart scarf of black and white satin.

The other three costumes worn by Betty King, Irma Laver and Georgia Brown are of fancy brocaded materials. Two of them feature colors against a background of gold cloth, and the third shows a brocaded satin figure on black tulle. Each costume has its distinct piece of millinery.

Needless to say these outfits are the sort you hang on a hickory limb or in the locker or any convenient place so they don't get in the water.

Today is Ladies Day, tomorrow "Murphy" Day and Wednesday "Everybody" Day. And Greensboro has here too. Those cates of Charlie Carroll always have been the best drawing card at Stonewall Jackson park. There is no doubt about today's attendance being good—always is on Ladies Day. Tomorrow is expected to be a record breaker in point of crowd. Loyal fans interested in seeing Danville continue in the Piedmont league have been working for the past week to bring out a big crowd tomorrow to celebrate "Murphy Day" and to help the Danville manager make good some of his losses.

Leo Harris is Murphy's choice for the afternoon's game in the first mix-up with the Patriots. "Cudde" has been going great since his recuperation and return to the game; and a hard fight is the order of the day.

Not a Bad Showing.

The Tobaccoists did not make a bad showing last week at all considering the opposition they had—the two league leaders Durham took two of the first series but the Leafs

WANT DAVIS TO OPEN HIS DRIVE IN NEW ENGLAND

Leaders See Great Prospect of Swinging States to Democrats

(By The Associated Press)

DARK HARBOR, ISLESBORO, Maine, July 28.—Democratic leaders in New England desire John W. Davis, the party standard bearer, to open his campaign in this section of the country. They believe there is a great prospect of swinging several New England states into the Democratic column and that Mr. Davis have a very good effect, especially in Maine where the state election is to be held in September.

Presentation of this phase of the situation, was one of the purposes of the visit paid today to Mr. Davis by Daniel J. N. McGillicuddy, national committeeman from Maine. Mr. Davis will defer decision as to whether he will accept the offer to campaign in New England until he returns to New York and has had opportunity to confer with Clem L. Shaver, his manager, and other leaders.

ELK BOTHER FARMERS.

WEENATCHEE, Wash., July 28.—Hungry elk emerging from the foothills and feasting on haystacks in the vicinity of Okanogan have caused farmers to organize to combat them. The elk herds have been driven back by the firing of blank shells over their heads, but with the return of hunger the animals revisit the farm lands.

When a quartz crystal is heated, it expands faster sidewise than lengthwise.

PITTSYLVANIA FAMILY CAN BOAST LONG LIFE RECORD

Longevity in Virginia is by no means a rare occurrence and frequent reference is chronicled of birth-day celebrations which belie the Scriptural adage that the years of man are three-score years and ten. The accompanying reproduction of a photograph shows a group of well-known Pittsylvanians, all members of one family who were the principals in a recent family reunion which was held at J. T. Marshall's home at Mount Cross.

The event was the 88th birthday of Mrs. Nancy Gray Marshall who appears at the extreme right of the photograph, widow of Reuben Marshall, a well-known Confederate soldier who died some years ago at the ripe old age of 82. Mrs. Marshall's father died at the old homestead at the age of 92. The birthday celebration was attended by one sister, Mrs. Fanny Lewis, aged 85, and two brothers, Daniel Gray, aged 78, and "Bilby" Gray, aged 85. A second sister over eighty years of age who lives near Danville was unfortunately too infirm to attend the reunion.

Present also at the reunion which took place on July 20th were six Washington, headquarters Seattle: July 63; August 67; September 118; October 49; November 40; and December 57; total 387.

Complete Repair to Water Main in Dan River

Repairs to the 12-inch water main in Dan River which recently sprang a leak as result of the pipe line being struck by debris were completed at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The operation was successfully undertaken and the pipe was restored without any effect being felt in North Danville. The valve on the southside of the river was closed at 9 p. m. Saturday and 20 men worked feverishly to straighten the line. First of all efforts were made to pull the line back to its original position but this was not feasible. Every time the line was straightened a bulge occurred elsewhere. Two sections were then cut with oxygen burners, the pipe was straightened and one of the sections was "sleeved" in order to make it fit. After this, molten lead was poured into the joints and the water was turned on again. A concrete sheath has been poured in mid channel so that in future should heavy debris come down the river it will slide over the concrete without hanging in the pipe. The coffer dams will remain intact for a few days until the concrete has dried.

THE WEATHER FORECAST
WASHINGTON, July 28.—Virginia. Partly cloudy today and Tuesday, local thundershowers Tuesday in southeast portion, not much change in temperature.
North Carolina. Fair in west, probably thundershowers in east portion tonight and Tuesday.

GREEN HAIL
PARIS, July 28.—Parisian women are replacing shingled hair with a sort of Greek headpiece, which consists of a band around the head, forcing all the hair back. The cap is worn behind or left outside the band. In this way long hair can be worn again to replace the now unpopular single bob.

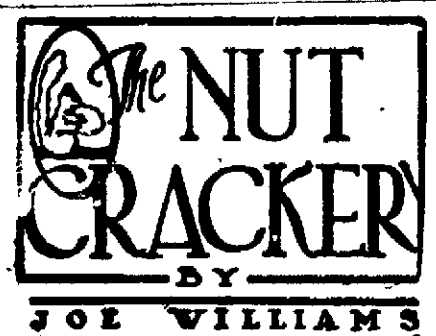

PINK SIDEWALKS
LONDON, July 28.—Pink sidewalks have been laid in a district near Herne Bay to do away with the glare from ordinary stone walks. The new walks not only are more restful to the eyes, but cooler beneath the feet, it is claimed.

MORNING STOCK LETTER
(Courtesy Thomson and McKinnon.)
NEW YORK, July 28.—The old folks had a saying: "No news is good news." I guess that will apply this morning. We are at the beginning of a new week and nothing very exciting for either a bull or a bear. However, we sufficient of last week's developments to help all continue in the cheerful frame of mind. The outstanding feature in the present industrial situation is well summarized in the head lines of this morning's Journal of Commerce, "high grain prices stimulate trade in middle-west. Wholesale trade better as reserve stocks of goods give out. Bankers think radical propaganda crushed. Warm weather distinct aid to all summer lines. Building materials stronger."

I suppose every one is pleased to note the change that has occurred in the copper metal situation. The price is up but I believe it has only made a start and further advances will come, and I see no reason why the copper stocks should not before long reach substantially higher levels. The entire stock market, subject to a reaction now and then, continues as a most inviting field for investment and speculation.

U. S. FILMS POPULAR
LONDON, July 28.—Popularity and superiority of American films have dealt a death blow to English-made movies within the last six months. English theater owners are buying the cheaper and better American films and the British producers are reported to be on the verge of bankruptcy.

Babe Ruth has decided to become a detective after his baseball career is ended.—News Item

An interview with Detective Ruth. Who said anything about embracing anybody? I'm strictly a family man, and what's more—

Are you interested in crime? Disgusted is the way these pitchers keep the ball away from me with men on bases?

Do you plan to affect a disguise? Yes, I do. I will discard my cap. Do you agree with the police that the use of bloodhounds in tracking criminals is obsolete?

Now that's a lot of okra soup. No bloodhound is going to be a substitute for me. I do not feel very rubbery, as it were.

Haw, haw! Say, that's pretty. My dear Watson, come in and listen to this guy here.

Getting back to the science of sleuthing, Mr. Ruth, your association with criminals has been rather limited, hasn't it?

How do you get that kind of an epidemic? I'm on snarling terms with more umpires than a society coowager has chins.

But the gum-shoe methods you will be forced to adopt, won't you find that rather distasteful?

Our guys in the press can say a lot of things about the old Bambino. You can say that I'm puffed up like the Shenandoah, you say that the three gentlemen I like best are Babe Ruth, George Ruth and George Herman Ruth, but you never can say that I had a distaste for gum.

One thing more, Mr. Ruth, do you plan to join the city force or strike out for yourself?

Three days later the reporter came to Rubbing the point of his chin tenderly, he reflected, I should have known better than to have mentioned strike-out to that bird.

Firpo to Meet Wills Sept. 11th

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, July 28.—It is at last definitely settled that Luis Angel Firpo will meet Harry Wills in a 12-round bout at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on the night of September 11. Tex Rickard, promoter, made this statement after a conference with officials of the United States Polo Association, who had asked Rickard to avoid a conflict between the ring battle and the international polo matches scheduled for September 6 and 10.

Firpo, has practically decided upon Saratoga as his training ground and will go there some time this week. Wills already has begun to get into shape for the fight at Southampton, L. I.

WEALTH FROM THE AIR
How many people have heard of Krypton and Xenon? How many know that these are part of the atmosphere we breathe? They are, indeed, rare since they form respectively 1-10,000 and 1-1,000,000 of the volume of the common air. Yet some day industry may find a use for them. This is the optimistic prospect suggested by Dr. North Travers in his contribution to "Chemistry in the Twentieth Century." Other rare gases in the atmosphere, helium, argon and neon, unknown to former generations, have been commercialized. Helium is used for filling airships. Neon is used in the construction of illuminated signs. Argon is manufactured from the air for filling "gas filled" lamps.

CANADIANS AFTER CONFIDENCE MEN

MONTREAL, July 26.—The arrest of six men, two of whom, "English Chaple" Lewis, alias Edward Long and George Wallace, were arrested in police court today, marked the drive started recently by the Canadian and United States secret service against a gang of international confidence men who are alleged to have swindled tourists visiting Montreal during the last six weeks of more than a million dollars. The two prisoners arrested today are charged specifically with having obtained $25,000 under false pretenses from H. L. Christie, of Chicago. Lewis was held without bail and Wallace was also committed to prison because of his inability to furnish bond for $10,000. They were arrested as they were about to board a train for New York.

More than $100,000, part of the profits of two weeks' operation of the gang, is said by the police to be hidden in a safety deposit vault which they have under surveillance.

According to United States officials, Lewis is wanted in the United States on charges of having obtained fraudulently $50,000 from Simon Touch, of St. Augustine, Fla., and $20,000 from J. E. Blumenthal, of Jacksonville.

Equipment Trust Certificates.
A form of high grade investment, which ought to be better known to every investor, is the equipment trust certificate. These certificates are not listed on any exchange and command no speculative attention. Quotations are expressed in percentage of yield rather than in percentage of par and are looked upon by most individual investors in the tables which the newspaper print it will be stated for instance that the 5 per cent. equipments of the XYZ railroad are 5.25 per cent. bid and 5.15 per cent. asked. Until you stop and think it looks as though the buyer was offering more than the seller was willing to take. That is not the case. The buyer is willing to pay a price that will give him a return of 5.25 per cent. but the seller wants a sum which will yield only 5.15 per cent. on the investment.

Equipment trust certificates are bought and sold entirely for investment and never for speculation. What really counts is the fact that the security back of these railway equipment is on a par with if not stronger than that back of the best of railway first mortgage bonds. Defaults on railway equipment are almost unknown. The reason for this is that while the equipment certificate is an obligation of the railroad named and is guaranteed by the road, title to the equipment remains in the name of the trust for the benefit of the certificate holders until all the certificates have been paid off.

You may have observed on a locomotive or on a freight car a small metal card or tag stating that this particular piece of rolling stock is the property of the ABC Trust Company, trustee. This is for the purpose of identification. If by any chance it should happen that the railroad fails to meet its contract in any particular the trustee can take possession of the locomotive or freight car and sell it to some other road.

In practice the last thing that a railroad will let go is its equipment. Without equipment it can do no business and it comes about that the claims of the holders of these certificates are met no matter what happens to the bondholder, first mortgage or otherwise. It also follows that an equipment trust certificate of a so-called weak road may be just as sound an investment as the obligation of a strong road.

These certificates mature serially, that is to say a certain amount of the principal becomes due every year and the whole sum is payable before the equipment suffers material depreciation. For the investor who needs a comparatively short term security of the highest investment grade the railway equipment certificate is probably as good as anything else in the entire investment list outside of a government bond.

NEW YORK STOCKS.
(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 28.—Eastern railroad shares again assumed leadership of the advance in the stock market as the eighth consecutive week of rising prices was ushered in today. Lackawanna mounted to a new 1924 high record and Erie, Chesapeake and Ohio and Louisville and Nashville scored good gains. Specialties were in demand, American Waterworks advanced almost two points. Prospects of increased buying from the agricultural regions, due to rising commodity prices, carried the mail order stocks—Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward—and International Harvester to the year's highest levels. Buying became more diversified as trading progressed, advances of one to more than three points embracing American Ice, Associated Dry Goods, Pittsburgh and West Virginia preferred, South Porto Rico Sugar and G. R. Kinney. Southern Railway preferred was added to the list of new higher records scored by the rail shares with Lackawanna and other carriers extending their early gains. Some profit taking was evident in the coppers and low priced oils. Foreign exchanges opened easy.

NEW YORK COTTON.
(By The Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 28.—In absence of rain drought west over Sunday, cotton prices again were pushed up to higher levels early today and at the opening showed a net rise of 29 to 36 points.

Aggressive support from Wall street, the west and Liverpool, in connection with a strong upturn in the cotton market, later advanced the October position to 23.97 and December to 29.10, a net rise of 62 to 65 points. A good deal of realizing took place as the October position approached the 30 cent level predicted by bulls for some time past, but in view of the fact that the rain is so badly needed in the southwest, no important setbacks occurred during the first half hour and sentiment on the whole was still bullish.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.
(By The Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, July 28.—The cotton market opened higher with active trading. First trades showed gains of 11 to 35 points and continued to advance during and after the call until October traded up to 29.23 and December to 28.88 or 23 to 24 points above closing levels of Saturday. Liverpool came in better than due and there was little rain in the drought section of the western belt over Sunday with temperatures rising. Cotton goods reports were also decidedly more favorable. The early buying developed a great scarcity of contracts. After the first rush of buying had been satisfied the market eased off about 25 points from the top on realizing.

MORNING COTTON LETTER.
NEW YORK, July 28.—Cable strong. The south had mostly fair strong over Sunday and the forecast is fair. The weekly forecast predicts showers for west Gulf States Wednesday or Thursday.

Sales in Worth Street last week estimated at one million pieces—the largest business in several months. New Bedford reports improved demand. Manchester cables say business checked by advance in prices. Journal of Commerce special report Mississippi outlook best in years in many parts of the State. Louisiana is better than last month and Alabama has also made improvements during July. Texas drought remains the dominating factor.

LONDON, July 28.—Snakes were unresponsive to the music of a jazz band that was imported into the London Zoological Gardens recently in the interest of science. Among the reptiles, only a few of the lizards and the Chinese alligator so much as move a tail when the band began to play.
